This document is a Software Development Services Agreement between John Doe Consulting (Consultant) and XYZ Corporation (Client), effective as of a specified date. It outlines the terms and conditions under which the Consultant will provide software development services to the Client. The agreement details the scope of work and specific deliverables in Exhibit A, including a list of tasks, functionalities, features, or documents, code and software.

The project is scheduled to commence on March 10, 2025, with an anticipated completion date of June 10, 2025, subject to potential changes by mutual agreement or delays caused by the Client. The Client will pay the Consultant a total fee of $15,000, paid in three installments tied to the execution of the agreement, the completion of a database design, and the final acceptance of the deliverables. Late payments will incur interest.

A confidentiality clause protects sensitive information exchanged between both parties, defining "Confidential Information" and outlining the Receiving Party's obligations to protect and not misuse the Disclosing Party's confidential data. This obligation has some exceptions.

The document also includes provisions for the acceptance and testing of deliverables, where the Client has a period of time to test and evaluate the deliverables against the specifications outlined in the attached exhibit.

This document outlines the terms and conditions of an agreement between a client and a consultant for services rendered. It details the acceptance process for deliverables, stating that the client must provide written notice of deficiencies if deliverables don't meet the acceptance criteria. The consultant then has a specified number of attempts to correct these deficiencies. Failure to meet the criteria after multiple attempts allows the client to terminate the agreement.
